TESTIMONIALS

"As a young girl my mother instilled in me the values of caring, giving and supporting the community" says Rita Burnell. "Back in the UK and South Africa I was told by my parents and grandparents that whenever there was a disaster the Salvos were always there – just as they are here in Australia. The Salvation Army has a conscience and can be relied upon, and through my Will I'm able to help continue their work amongst the homeless and those who are socially disadvantaged."

"Supporting the work of The Salvation Army is all about having a social conscience and being able to help when you are in a position to ". Lorraine Bates together with husband John know from personal experience "that there are too many young people in the community with mental health issues – a major cause of youth homelessness in Australia today. The Salvation Army is always there to provide the support and services to make a positive impact on the future of so many of these young people." And that's the reason The Salvation Army is one of the nominated charities to benefit from their Wills. "We know that they will use our bequest in a way that will make a difference."
